THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR JUNE 21, 1903.

SUBJECT: Paul's Charge to Timothy—2 Tim., iii: 14 to iv: 8. GOLDEN TEXT: "There is laid up for me a crown of righteousness"—2 Tim., iv: 8.

By Rev. J. E. Gilbert, D. D., Secretary of American Society of Religious Education

PRELIMINARY.—It is believed that Paul was approaching the end of his career (2 Tim., iv: 6) when he wrote from the city of Rome his second letter to Timothy, probably A. D. 66, or four years before the destruction of Jerusalem. Twelve epistles (or thirteen if Hebrews is assigned to him) had fallen from his pen in the last few years of his life. He had traveled extensively in Palestine, Asia Minor, Macedonia, Greece, Spain and Italy. He had been crowned with thorns and crowned with a crown of thorns. He had been crowned with a crown of thorns. He had been crowned with a crown of thorns.

EXHORTATION.—(Verses 14 and 15). The Lesson Committee has abruptly broken into the life of the apostle, thought, confining all that went before and beginning with the fourteenth verse. Fortunately this letter is so instructive that one may begin at any point. Timothy is here urged not only to diligence, but to loyalty to the teaching which he has received. Paul would save him from any speculations or digressions and hold him to the things which he has learned. He would have him to be a faithful steward of the gifts of God, true to the vision by which he was moved to preach. The years have passed away since he and Silas were at Philippi, and he has become a man of God. He has become a man of God. He has become a man of God.

FURNISHING.—(Verses 16 and 17). He who has the Bible is fully furnished for every service of the life. This is evident by several considerations. First, the Scriptures were "given by inspiration of God, and are profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction, so that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto every good work." (2 Pet. 1:3). What cannot be asserted by any other literature, and which is the only one that can be so asserted, is that the Scriptures are "profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction, so that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto every good work." (2 Pet. 1:3).

CHARGE.—(Verses 18 and 19). The chapter opens with a most solemn call to duty. Paul, feeling that his departure must take up and carry forward the unfinished work, Timothy was at Ephesus, which was rapidly becoming a center of the Christian church. Jerusalem and Antioch having previously taken their place. Timothy was at Ephesus, which was rapidly becoming a center of the Christian church. Jerusalem and Antioch having previously taken their place. Timothy was at Ephesus, which was rapidly becoming a center of the Christian church.

WARNING.—(Verses 20 and 21). Why was Paul so earnest? Why did he not leave Timothy to learn his duty by the school of experience, under the guidance of the Spirit? Partly because the future would be beset with trouble. Timothy would have to face many trials. Partly because the future would be beset with trouble. Timothy would have to face many trials. Partly because the future would be beset with trouble. Timothy would have to face many trials.

FAITHFULNESS.—(Verse 22). Timothy was in a most difficult position. He was a young man, and he was a Christian. He was a young man, and he was a Christian. He was a young man, and he was a Christian. He was a young man, and he was a Christian. He was a young man, and he was a Christian.

Rev. Ira Landrith, D. D., editor of the Cumberland Presbyterian, Nashville, Tenn.

Give Us Rest.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Mr. J. A. notes in the different papers the agitation of the question of candidates for offices, the election for which do not occur until one and two years from next November. The people are always deeply and immediately interested in the election of the local town and county officers, and as these elections take place the coming November, it would seem that the public mind is now enough interested and agitated about these elections without being disturbed so far in advance about those in the distant future.
